ABOUT A MONTH IN ISOLATION

---

Bushra al-Tawil

Administrative detainee since February, moved from Damon's isolation cells to Neve Tirtza's. She is the daughter of administrative detainee Jamal al-Tawil, who has spent years in Israeli prisons. The Prisoner's Society calls her a detained journalist.

On 20 September, prisoners' institutions held Israel "fully responsible" for her fate.

WOMEN PRISONERS

21 of 88 women: administrative detention

Women held 88

In administrative detention 21

Of the 88, 35 are mothers; two are pregnant. The institutions' lawyers say the women's symptoms match scabies; the prison service, they say, calls it "allergy". Dhikra Nasser, 23, told a Detainees' Commission lawyer she has had no scabies treatment in Damon.

Israel incorporated the Regulations into its law in 1948.

Over the years, under them and later military orders, it has held thousands of Palestinians without charge.

Today, detention orders are renewable indefinitely.
